To Build in the Hills Israel Tightening Grip On Occupied Jerusalem

By Henry Raymond JERUSALEM, Feb. 16 (NYT).—Disregarding local and international critics, the Israeli Ministry of Housing announced yesterday that it would move ahead with plans for four sprawling housing projects in the hillsides surrounding Jerusalem.

The plans envisage the construction of up to 35,000 units capable of accommodating 125,000 new Israeli residents—almost half of Jerusalem's present population—in the territories that were seized from Jordan in the six-day war of 1967. In announcing details of the plan, Zev Sharef, the minister of housing, spoke with unusual bluntness of their political goals: to settle new immigrants as soon as possible in order to keep Jerusalem "a Jewish city."

Up to now, Israeli officials had been careful about attributing political motives to the expansion of housing projects outside of Jerusalem, wanting to avoid as much as possible any suggestion that the projects were motivated by anything other than urban and human considerations.

Mayor Asked Delay Mr. Sharef's announcement was the first public statement on the matter by an Israeli official since Mayor Teddy Kolek of Jerusalem said on Jan. 28 that the new housing projects would be delayed for "urbanistic and esthetic" reasons. The mayor was responding to criticism from a group of international architects and city planners that has been helping him design a master plan for Jerusalem, several local architects and the Council for a Beautiful Israel, a recently formed conservation group opposed to haphazard (Continued on Page 2, Col. 3)

No Further Price Cuts, Poles Told Wage Hikes Also Called Impossible

By James Feron WARSAW, Feb. 16 (NYT).—The Polish people were told today that the decision to restore food prices to pre-December levels represents the last major economic concession left to the government. "There is absolutely no further possibility of decreasing prices and increasing wages," one article said. "Any further step would verge on economic irresponsibility," it stated, because "the country has no economic reserves."

The warning appeared in Zycie Warszawy, but it was written by articles in the state-controlled press also underlined the premier's parallel demand for "law, order and discipline in production" or an end to work stoppages that continue to plague Polish industry.

Wider Discontent The unexpected decision to lower food prices recently described as impossible but now said to be feasible because of Soviet credits, seemed to observers to reflect even wider economic discontent than had been apparent from the industrial disputes. It was assumed that Communist party officials who had been sent to the provinces to spread the message of the party's recent Central Committee meeting had returned to Warsaw with alarming messages from the provinces.

Paris Gives Libya Reminder: Jets to Be for Defense Only

PARIS, Feb. 16 (AP).—France issued a reminder of the "territorial defense only" it placed on its sale of fighter planes to Libya. The reminder, which was sent to Libyan officials, said that the 110 Mirage jets bought from France could be used "as we wish."

The French statement said that no planes have yet been delivered. The contract was signed Nov. 26, 1969.

Cairo Denies Plan to Sign Peace Apart

BEIRUT, Feb. 16 (AP).—Egyptian Minister of State for Presidential Affairs Sami Staraf said today Egypt would not conclude a separate peace with Israel. Mr. Staraf denied that remarks by President Anwar Sadat, in an interview with Newsweek magazine, meant he was abandoning other Arab countries to settle with Israel separately.

"The interview must be read as a whole, not in separate parts," Mr. Staraf said. "If you read it as a whole, you can see that there is no question of a separate peace with Israel."

Mr. Staraf said he was carrying messages from Mr. Sadat to Syrian Premier Hafes Assad and to Lebanese President Suleiman Franjeh. He said the messages did not deal with the conflict with Israel "but, naturally, this will come up in my conversations with the Lebanese and Syrian leaders."

Libya Will Ask Each Oil Firm For Own Pact

BEIRUT, Feb. 16 (AP).—Libya declared today it will negotiate with the world's major oil companies on the price of Mediterranean oil on a company-by-company basis and not with a collective front of companies.

But a government statement added that Arab countries involved in oil talks scheduled to open soon in Tripoli, the Libyan capital, will present their demands collectively.

Another Threat. Libya threatened to make the coming talks even more prolonged and difficult than the negotiations over Persian Gulf oil that ended in Tehran Sunday.

The talks in Iran settled price increases for oil delivered at Persian Gulf ports. The negotiations in Tripoli will deal with oil delivered by pipeline to Mediterranean ports or produced by countries bordering the Mediterranean.

[In Zurich today, the Shah of Iran, who arrived for a vacation, cautioned the Libyans to be "reasonable" in their coming price negotiations and declared he was committed to backing them only if their demands went no further than those made recently by the states of the Persian Gulf, the Associated Press reported.]

Higher Price Because of shorter shipping distances to European consumer countries, such oil commands a higher price on the world market. The negotiations in Tripoli are meant to obtain a percentage price hike at least as high as that which the oil-producing countries won in Tehran.

Libya, Algeria, Iraq and Saudi Arabia are the countries involved in the coming talks. Libya and Algeria are major oil suppliers of Western Europe, with their fields only a short distance across the Mediterranean.

Iraq and Saudi Arabia pump oil by pipeline across the desert to Mediterranean outlets in Syria and Lebanon.

The statement said oil ministers of the four countries would meet this week to hammer out unified (Continued on Page 2, Col. 3)

Riot police move to break up a barricade and demonstration in Sbarre section of Reggio Calabria yesterday.

Police Fired Upon in Reggio Rioting

REGGIO CALABRIA, Italy, Feb. 16 (AP).—Demonstrators vented their anger at having lost their battle to make this city a regional capital today. They fired on police and attacked them with stones and fire bombs.

Two persons were injured in the clashes. The regional assembly of Calabria voted to make the smaller town of Catanzaro regional capital in a tense 12-hour meeting that ended in Catanzaro at dawn.

The reaction in Reggio Calabria, following more than seven months of protest agitation, ranged from "cold fury" to frustrated resignation. Four bombs heavily damaged public buildings here while the regional assembly was meeting. Later police moved in to dismantle new barricades. They were showered with stones and fire bombs, one of which set fire to a police truck.

A 37-year-old railroad worker, Amedeo Gallieri, was wounded when he was grazed above the eye by a bullet near the window of his home. He was watching the disorders from a balcony of his home.

The violence threatened to keep alive one of the most prolonged civil disturbances in postwar Italy in which there have been deaths, hundreds of injuries, millions of dollars in property damage and the complete economic paralysis of this city of 140,000 inhabitants on the southern tip of the Italian peninsula.

Although resentment over the capital decision was widespread, many inhabitants of Reggio expressed grim resignation, draping their balconies with black flags.

"We haven't been to school for weeks and nobody's making any money," one student said. "The (situation) must be calmed now."

The continued violence was attributed to 400-500 rightist youths. The regional assembly's 21-19 vote was a triumph for Premier Emilio Colombo, who had drawn up the settlement. Except for three Christian Democrats from Reggio, who were expelled from the party because of their opposition, the four center-left coalition parties voted for the formula. The Communists and extreme rightists voted against.

The settlement was a compromise because it assigned the title of capital and executive offices to Catanzaro but made Reggio the seat of the regional assembly, one of 19 recently created in Italy.

In addition, a steel plant that will employ 12,000 men was assigned to the province of Reggio, where tens of thousands of persons are unemployed.

Rome Promises Aid. The Italian cabinet tonight approved measures providing for increased aid and investment in the impoverished, southern region of Calabria—particularly for the riot-ridden city of Reggio Calabria. The cabinet also approved a measure providing for building a university in Calabria's third city, Cosenza.

Fog, Rains Slow Down Laos Drive

Many Helicopter Flights Canceled

QUANG TRI, South Vietnam, Feb. 16 (Reuters).—Monsoon fog and rain today set back South Vietnam's nine-day-old offensive against the Ho Chi Minh Trail in Laos and tied up vital American air support on the Vietnamese side of the border.

Dozens of helicopter missions have been postponed or canceled in the last two days by low visibility around Khe Sanh, springboard for the drive by more than 18,000 South Vietnamese troops against North Vietnamese supply lines. But despite the bad weather, six large C-130 transport planes landed at Khe Sanh today.

The South Vietnamese command provided only scanty information about the progress of the operation, particularly on the helicopter-borne units, which informed sources said were far ahead of the ground column.

Small long-range reconnaissance units were believed to be in the general area of Sepone, 27 miles west of the border. A South Vietnamese command spokesman said casualties since the start of the operation were 487 North Vietnamese killed, 300 South Vietnamese killed and wounded, and more than 50 killed and wounded Americans.

Military sources today reported the arrival of 2,000 U.S.-trained Laotian hill tribesmen led by American Central Intelligence Agency agents to harass North Vietnamese troops in the Ho Chi Minh Trail complex of Laos, United Press International reported. The sources said Khe and Lao Thung tribesmen were moved into a region west of Sepone. The guerrillas are being used for attacks against North Vietnamese units preparing to face the South Vietnamese task force pushing west along Route 9, the sources said.

Red Attacks Increase. Communist shelling attacks and ground fighting inside South Vietnam increased, posing a steady threat to the supply lines on which the government operation depends.

Fire Support Base Scotch, nine miles northwest of Khe Sanh, appeared to be the focal point for the attacks along the north flank of Route 9, running from Quang Tri into Laos.

In a series of clashes near an old Marine outpost known as the "Rockpile," three Americans and three North Vietnamese died. Along the Laotian border west of Khe Sanh, an American artillery base was hit by mortar barrages overnight. There was also sporadic shelling of the series of outposts, U.S. and South Vietnamese forces have established along the border and just south of the Demilitarized Zone.

In Saigon, the U.S. command announced the first loss of a fixed-wing aircraft since the start of the Laotian operation. A command spokesman said a Phantom fighter-bomber crashed for unknown reasons in Laos early today, but the two crewmen were rescued unharmed. He emphasized that the aircraft was not part of the bombing support for South Vietnamese forces in Laos, but was on a separate bombing raid against supply dumps.

Earlier, the U.S. command said that an American jet, in the second attack of its kind in 24 hours, fired a missile yesterday on an anti-aircraft gun site inside North Vietnam. Results of the attacks were not known.

Saigon to Ask Shift of Talks From Paris to Southeast Asia

SAIGON, Feb. 16 (Reuters).—South Vietnam will suggest at the Vietnam peace talks in Paris on Thursday that the venue for the meetings be moved from the French capital to Southeast Asia, Foreign Minister Tran Van Lam said.

Mr. Lam was also quoted in the official Vietnam press agency as warning the French government that if it continued its "unfair activities," South Vietnam might consider severing diplomatic relations with Paris. The foreign minister was thought to be referring to concern expressed by members of the French government following the thrust by South Vietnamese troops into Laos last week.

The agency quoted Mr. Lam as saying: "If the other side agrees to change the venue of the talks, the problem is easy. If the Communist side does not agree, the Republic of Vietnam will again review the question."

There was no indication which Southeast Asian country South Vietnam had in mind for the talks.

Army Board Declares Calley To Be Sane as Trial Resumes

FORT BENNING, Ga., Feb. 16 (UPI).—An Army medical board has found Lt. William L. Calley Jr. sane "in every respect," the judge at the lieutenant's court-martial disclosed today.

The military judge, Col. Reid W. Kennedy, revealed the findings after he announced that copies of the medical report had been given to both prosecution and defense attorneys.

Lt. Calley, 27, is standing trial for the alleged murder of 103 South Vietnamese civilians during an American infantry sweep of the village of My Lai on March 16, 1968.

The trial was resumed today after a one-month recess called to allow examination of Lt. Calley by the Army Sanitary Board at Walter Reed Medical Center in Washington.

Laird Warns of 'Tough Days' In Laos, Despite 'Success'

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16 (AP).—with Mr. Laird, also indicated that the operation was going well," Mr. Ziegler said.

However, the spokesman said, in response to a question, enemy resistance has been greater than the South Vietnamese forces expected.

All members of the cabinet attended the session, Mr. Nixon stated on objectives were security of U.S. forces in Vietnam and proceeding successfully with Vietnamization," Mr. Ziegler said. "By any measurement our involvement in Vietnam is winding down," he said.

He said this is reflected in decreasing casualties and in the President's budget. "Of course," Mr. Ziegler said, "any level of casualties is too much."

Genuine Primate Art 5-Year-Old Orangutan Wins Children's Painting Prize

TOPEKA, Kans., Feb. 16 (UPI).—D. James Orang, the winner of a recent painting contest, has turned out to be Djakarta Jim, an orangutan at the Topeka zoo.

Jim, five years old, won first place in the painting contest at the conference of the Kansas Recreation and Park Association in Hutchinson. The other contestants were children ranging from 4 to 18 years of age. Gary Clarke, director of the zoo, said yesterday that the judges didn't know D. James Orang was an ape until after he was selected as the best for his creations "Train From Tokyo" and "Tornado."

Madrid Passes Law to Reform Trade Unions

By Richard Eder MADRID, Feb. 16 (NYT)—After three years of debate, the Spanish regime has enacted a law...

The law also disappointed important figures in the official syndicates, who fought a losing battle over the past years to make the syndicates, if not democratic, at least more independent from the government.

On the other hand, the law's proponents in the cabinet and the top syndicate hierarchy argue that it sets up the beginning of a representative labor structure in Spain.

Proponents of the law point out two important changes which they say will liberalize the present situation. One is the workers' right to hold meetings in the shop or factory.

Although the government specifically declines otherwise, the right of assembly, not to mention what is said and decided at meetings, will be subject to the restrictive provisions of Spanish law on freedom of assembly and speech.

Two Questions The questions that some observers are asking now are: how many such adjustments can the government afford, and how far can the inflation policy be allowed to develop.

Warsaw television displayed brief interviews tonight with workers in a nearby automobile plant expressing their gratitude to Mr. Gierk for lowering food prices and predicting that work would surely move forward briskly now.

Fiat Lays Off 37,700 for 3-Day Period

TURIN, Feb. 16 (AP)—Fiat laid off 37,700 more workers today, increasing the total of suspended employees to nearly 41,000.

Reclaiming a Neighborhood In Rome

By Naomi Barry

ROME—A great neighborhood never really dies. For example, during the 17th century, the Via Giulia was a grand street of baroque palaces, but after a long period of splendor, Roman society moved elsewhere and it sagged slowly into a semi-slum. However, it started to make a comeback ten years ago when Ivo del Borgo, a Jewish refugee from Egypt, opened a small antique shop on the Via Giulia.

Despite the squalor, he felt the street had character. Furthermore, there were numerous artisans working in what used to be the porters' lodges of the palaces. Del Borgo knew that for his type of business the desirable address was the Via del Babuino. However, the rents were exorbitant and he was strapped for money. His capital was about $14,000 which Christie's had obtained by selling six Fabergé boxes, the only possessions he left Cairo with. The shop attracted other smart, ambitious antique dealers; now there are more than 30 of them. The customers began to look at the street with fresh eyes, and gradually the palatial apartments upstairs were reclaimed, restored, redecorated. Today the Via Giulia is one of the most fashionable residential addresses in

Yvette and Ivo del Borgo

Rome as well as the modern center for the city's antique trade. Naturally, the rents have gone up and up.

New Quarters

Pioneer Del Borgo did so well with his first enterprise that this week he opened new headquarters in what used to be his warehouse on the parallel Via Monserrato at No. 23. With a second street in the picture, the Via Giulia has expanded into a neighborhood.

Del Borgo's Antichità e Design has introduced a new concept to the old quarter. Treasures from the past are presented with contemporary furniture of his own design, executed by his friends, the workmen whose hole-in-the-wall ateliers are all around.

Roman painters have eyed the stylish premises and are clamoring to use the walls for exhibitions. Since Del Borgo and his wife Yvette are a charming couple, Antichità e Design also is becoming a rendezvous and community center. Del Borgo elements are introduced in limited series only to maintain individuality. He firmly believes that the touch of the artisan's hand is an essential in the creation of a satisfactory contemporary environment. Although he works in the now accepted modern material of polished steel, he also is reviving the use of woods such as tulipwood, the natural grain of which is patterned as an abstract composition.

In Cairo

For 50 years, the Del Borgo family ran a leading firm of antique dealers in Cairo, manufacturing furniture as well as selling it. The huge company, known as Pontrenon, was so established that it was called upon to supply furniture to the late Gamal Abdel Nasser's villa and to decorate one of the government's luxury Nile steamers.

The Del Borgos, who now feel completely at home in Rome, are putting their stamp on the whole Via Giulia neighborhood as they arrange those marvelous apartments for the actors and nobility who have recently moved in upstairs.

and jolly enough, though somewhat mechanical in its unfolding. It is astonishing that its author, a shrewd diagnostician of the public pulse, has not emphasized its women's liberation undertones for new audiences. Its brightest moments are superimposed by the droll Fred Emery of music hall fame, who impersonates a tipsy photographer, and has an all-too-brief session at the parlor piano, the comic high spot of the evening.

Lulu

The Nottingham Playhouse production of "Lulu," transferred from the Royal Court to the Lyric on effusive critical recommendation, leaves about everything to be desired. Neither its audience nor most of the members of its cast seem in key with its essentials and it is strange to watch an English company grappling with this unwieldy Teutonic shocker of the early century. The adaptation seeks to compress the two Wedekind plays—"Earth Spirit" and "Pandora's Box"—into one, but it has managed this business less adroitly than the Berg opera libretto. Julia Foster works hard and often ably as the sex-symbol heroine, but lacks the necessary exotic magnetism. The direction is not sufficiently imposing to keep some of the spectators from laughing at the wrong time as the ironic tone of the grotesque elements in the script is never conveyed.

David Mercer's "After Haggerty" (at the Criterion), another recipient of enthusiastic critical endorsement, contains some amusing scenes and its portrait of a fossilized North Country father (masterfully acted by Leslie Sands), who comes to London to disapprove of his drifting bohemian son, is drawn with sharp observation and has an authentic ring. But Mercer's attempts to relate his befuddled protagonist to important world events and thereby sprinkle his play with topical salt are strained and unsuccessful. This maneuver is akin to inserting newswires into "Charley's Aunt" and then proclaiming it a work filled with burning issues.

"The Jockey Club Stakes" (at the Vaudeville) is a pleasant, if trifling, farce in which William Douglas Home's talent for dialogue is unmistakable. Plays about horse-racing—from "In Old Kentucky" and "Lord and Lady Algy" to "The Sport of Kings"—invariably find a large and appreciative public and this one by Home is filled with entertaining lines, though its premise is slight and its plot transparent. As its dominating figure, Alastair Sim gives it body and flavor, providing an exemplary exercise in light comedy acting.

"Catch My Soul" (at the Roundhouse), a rock "Gothic," is unquestionably the outstanding new musical show in London. It has great verve and a vibrating excitement. Lance Le Gaunt, who has contributed several numbers to its score, renders a striking performance as its Western-heralding, cunning demon with overtones of Charles Manson. Here is novel and ingenious paraphrasing of classic drama, quick with startling originality and alive with theatrical black magic.

Norman Mailer's Revenge on Women's Lib

By Digby Diehl

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif.—Professionals don't get angry—they get even. And Norman Mailer, having been crowned chief male chauvinist pig by Kate Millett, determined to do a job on women's liberation. Turning from his just completed study of the Apollo-11 moon shot, "Of a Fire on the Moon," he confronts the women—Mrs. Millett, Robin Morgan, Germaine Greer, Valerie Solanas, Grace Atkinson—and the literature—"Sexual Politics," "Sisterhood Is Powerful," "Off Our Backs," "The Female Eunuch," "The SCUM Manifesto," etc.

The result is an explosive, witty, thoughtful and—surely—outrageous 55,000 word book, "The Prisoner of Sex," which is presented in its entirety in the March issue of Harper's magazine. In this massive amalgam of polemic, literary criticism, biography, philosophy and biological musings, Mailer throws a gigantic firebomb into the women's liberation headquarters, leaving a lot of the rhetoric and argument in flames and delivering at least one fatality in the person of Kate Millett.

Brilliant and entertaining as this assault may be, we have come to expect more of Mailer than simple rebuttal. And in this case we are not disappointed, as his confrontation with women's liberation becomes the springboard for extraordinarily sensitive and revealing examinations of the writings of Henry Miller and D. H. Lawrence, for further considerations of the insidious effect of technology of modern civilization, and for the development of Mailer's personal philosophy of female sexuality. It is a mixed bag of tricks that will shock, enrage, and, in a few cases, delight anyone remotely interested in sex.

"I'll be surprised if I can still shock the American public," said the author who used the euphemism "fug" in print in 1945 with his first best seller, "The Naked and the Dead." "You've got to shock them to get their attention, to keep them awake. But it's getting to be harder to do every year."

Holding court recently at the Polo Lounge of the Beverly Hills Hotel, Mailer was expansive, articulate, boisterous and charming. His Brillo pad of gray curls bobbed abjectly up and down as he improvised upon themes both big and trivial. An infectious smile seems to spread over his entire head; his eyes alternately dart and penetrate. Like a boxer, he jabs and feints and hooks and stabs as he talks, alternating with grubs at a succession of drinks.

He talks fast in his mixture of Harvard and Brooklyn accents. But he has a patience and ease that was absent in the days not so long ago when he would jump up and slug it out with every wisecracker who happened in the bar. Indeed, at 48, Mailer has, as they say, "mellowed," but continues his ambition: to write the great American novel.

But first he deals with the women liberationists: "It was fun hitting a girl for once, instead of a fellow," Mailer says. "But after the tactics she used on me (in 'Sexual Politics'), I don't feel too badly. She's a literary shyster lawyer. Now, I don't judge any other person's route sexually," he said, perhaps alluding to Mrs. Millett's recent declaration of bisexuality. "But I can judge another person's ideas. For example, I decide Millett's ideas are worthless. They're worthless because they're dishonest, ill-founded and unspeakable shyster's tricks."

'It was fun hitting a girl for once... But after the tactics she (Kate Millett) used on me (in 'Sexual Politics'), I don't feel too badly. She's a literary shyster lawyer.'

Mailer backs up this kind of polemic in "The Prisoner" by describing how Mrs. Millett distorts the meanings of passages from himself, Miller, and Lawrence through ellipses and selective quotation.

Few of Mrs. Millett's cohorts fare much better. With the exceptions of a gallant bow to Gloria Steinem and some hope for Germaine Greer, as a stylist, Mailer is a scourge on the feminist scene. Typically, "Ty Grace Atkinson is an 18th-century German philosopher in style. I had to read some Kant for relief." Or, to the suggestion that Helen Gurley Brown at least embodied an enormous store of female energy: "That's not energy—that's cancer!"

"Frankly, writing the women's liberation piece was no fun at all, especially the critique. But I learned a lot about myself. I started with some firm conscious prejudices. But as you get into it, you discover that you have more ideas about sex than you ever thought you did. You realize that sex covers a huge spectrum of life. There's a line at the end of 'The Prisoner' which says that you have to decide whether sex is meaningful or absurd. If it's meaningful, you have to end up assigning more meaning to it than to any other activity. It can't be meaningful the way eating food is. It's a meaning that goes to the very root of existence. And once you see that there is nothing more meaningful or important, you become obsessed with it; you become the prisoner of sex."

In all fairness to women, "The Prisoner of Sex" leaves many basic questions unanswered. "Such as?" challenges Mailer. Such as a question he raises himself: Who does the dishes? "It's simple. Whoever does the most important work doesn't do the dishes." And what of the rejoinder that perhaps society has male chauvinist concepts of what constitutes "important work"? Mailer scowls: "Yeah, well that's where I begin to part company with them."

"Look, before women can get into the question of who does the dishes, they've got to confront the whole area of female psychology. I think it's absurd to start going into all these egalitarian and treating men and women as equal until that's been proven. My whole feeling is that we're not all equal. Men are both superior and inferior to women—at different levels of meaning. I hope some women to start going into all these egalitarian and treating men and women as equal until that's been proven. I mean, I'm sorry to remind you ladies, but you do have a womb."

Entertainment in New York

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—Here is the way The New York Times critics reviewed recent stage arrivals.

"Subject to Fits," at the New York Shakespeare Festival's Public Theater, "is a joy to encounter," according to Clive Barnes: "It is a cerebral play of dazzling intellectuality, music wit and calm literacy... bubbling with talent, almost arrogant in the joy it takes in hearing itself speak." Playwright Robert Montgomery has taken Dostoevski's novel "The Idiot" and, a program note says, "responded to it." Barnes agrees, moreover, that the play is not an adaptation: "Montgomery has written a play about a novel... We have once in a while seen this in dance—but never before, I think, in drama." But despite the variations the critic thinks a knowledge of the original Dostoevski novel "is a tremendous help." A.J. Antoon's direction "seemed to me impeccable," says Barnes, concluding that Andy Robinson as Myshkin, Sharon Laughlin as Natasha and Katharine Dumtree Agalys "all were fine in a play to remember."

"A Man's a Man," Eric Bentley's adaptation of Bertolt Brecht's comedy that first opened Off Broadway in 1968 and is now being presented by the Workshop of the Players Art "seems more difficult than inspired," says Mel Gussow, even though "the production is energetic" and the actors "almost as eager as Galy Gay himself." The failings of the show, says Gussow, "are not so much errors or oversights as the absence of firm directing and acting." Of the lead actors, James Hillbrand as the Bloody Five and Dennis Dugan as Galy Gay "seemed most able to cope with their characters," he says, though "none of the actors can sing." The play is being given at the WPA storefront theater on the Bowery, according to this critic, a "very appropriate" stage for a Brecht play.

Workers at Rolls Offer Proposal To Save RB-211

LONDON, Feb. 16 (AP)—Technicians and workers from Rolls-Royce today announced a bid to save the RB-211 jet engine.

They want Britain and the United States to turn the RB-211 and the TriStar into a joint government project on the lines of the British-French Concorde.

Mr. Jenkins, secretary general of the Association of Scientific, Technical and Management Staffs of Britain, wrote today to Prime Minister Edward Heath asking him and his government to back this initiative.

Mr. Jenkins told a news conference he will go to New York and Washington with a team of engineers engaged on the new jet engine to put their case before the U.S. administration, the public and Congress.

Wall Street Shrugs Off Rate Cuts

By Leonard Sloane NEW YORK, Feb. 16 (NYT)—Prices on the New York Stock Exchange virtually shrugged off today's prime rate reduction and Friday's discount rate cut...

The Dow Jones industrial average backed and filled throughout the day and closed at 880.06, up 1.23. Volume picked up slightly through high-block transactions...

Oil Issues Strong Most of today's strength was centered in the oil and the secondary issues. Many of the blue chips were weak with Du Pont falling 2 3/4 to 138 and General Electric dropping 7 8 to 105 3/4.

Occidental Petroleum led the most-active list and rose 7 8 to 22. Gulf advanced 7 8 to 31 3 8. Continental inched up 1 8 to 84 1 2. Jersey Standard tacked on 2 1/8 at 74 3/8 and Texaco picked up 3/4 to 36 1/8.

Traders searched out a group of low-priced issues for purchases during the day and helped to push their prices upward. Among them were Varian Associates, up 1 1/8 to 18; Computer Sciences, up 3 to 12 1/2; American Standard, up 2 to 23; and VSI Corp., up 2 3/8 to 20 3/4.

Computer stocks on the Big Board were apparently pushed higher by a bullish article in United Business and Investment Report. IBM gained 3/8 to 341 5/8, American Research & Development added 1 3/8 to 55 3/4, Tek rose 7/8 to 37 5/8 and Honeywell advanced 3/4 to 102 3/4.

Retail issues also were generally higher, following recent reports of higher sales in January and indications that 1971 sales would be firmer in some of the apparel areas. Woolworth rose 1 5/8 to a 1970-71 high of 47, May advanced 1 1/4 to 38 1/2 ex-dividend, J. J. Newberry tacked on 1 1/8 to 21 3/8 and Marcor added 1 1/8 to 37. Nevertheless, Sears fell 1 to 80 1/4.

White Motor lost 1 3/8 to 22 after trading as low as 20. White Consolidated, off 3/4 at 20 3/8, said it would call off its planned merger with White Motor should a preliminary injunction be granted by the Justice Department.

On the American Stock Exchange, prices closed higher after active trading. Sterling Reaction LONDON, Feb. 16 (Reuters)—Sterling's dollar rate soared today to its highest level since the devaluation crisis three years ago.

As overseas investors poured money into London to buy the British currency—and enjoy the high interest rate it earned—dealers said the Bank of England was able to add many dollars to its reserves.

The effect lifted sterling up to $2.1193—a ten-point gain since yesterday. Eurodollar rates eased across the board from overnight levels, with appreciable declines noted in some positions, particularly in day-to-day.

Prime Rate Shaved Again At U.S. Banks

Sterling Dollar Rate Climbs to New High

By Philip Greer NEW YORK, Feb. 16 (AP)—The seventh cut in bank lending rates in the past three months—and the fourth this year—swept across the country today, lowering the cost of borrowing for the nation's largest corporations to 5 3/4 from 6 percent.

The reduction, started by Bankers Trust Co., the sixth largest U.S. bank, was widely expected after 11 of the 12 regional Federal Reserve Banks trimmed their discount rate—the interest banks pay to borrow from the Treasury—to 4 3/4 from 5 percent on Friday.

The announcement of the prime rate cut made no mention of similar reductions in consumer loan rates, which are generally set upward from the prime. Banks, however, are expected to lower the interest they pay for deposits.

The cut reflected the continuing lack of demand for loans by large corporations, as well as the easier money policies of the Nixon administration and the relatively large amounts of lendable funds in the hands of the banks.

In Tokyo, William P. Butler, Charles Manhattan's chief economist, said that short-term U.S. interest rates have reached or are close to reaching bottom, AP-Dow Jones reported.

The view was echoed in New York by Henry Kaufman, partner and economist at Salomon Brothers, who said he thinks the low in interest rates will be set during the first quarter and rise moderately thereafter, according to Reuters.

0.7% Rise in U.S. Industrial Output In January Fed by Auto Industry

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16 (AP)—U.S. industrial production moved ahead moderately in January, but the advance still reflected considerable slack in the nation's economy, the Federal Reserve Board said today.

The key economic indicator rose by 0.7 percent last month, as the economy continued to bounce back from the low which followed the General Motors strike last fall. However, the increase trailed the upward revised 1.5 percent advance a month earlier.

The board said the stepup in output was centered in the automobile and related industries. But changes in most other industries were offsetting.

The index stood at 165.1 percent of the 1957-59 average. This was still 2 percent below the level prior to the auto strike and 5 1/2 percent below the peak reached in July 1969.

Production of industrial, commercial and defense equipment continued to decline in January, as did output of television sets and other appliances and commercial aircraft.

Auto assemblies rose 18 percent last month to an annual rate of 8.3 million units. The report also said that steel output increased reflected in part a buildup of inventories in anticipation of a possible strike later this year.

Ford's Net Income Fell 5.6% Last Year, Sales Rose 1.5%

DETROIT, Feb. 16 (AP-DJ)—Ford Motor's net income fell 5.6 percent in 1970 to $515.7 million or $4.77 a share, from $546.5 million, or $5.03 a share, a year ago. Sales in 1970 rose 1.5 percent to $14,979 billion from $14,755 billion in 1969.

Fourth-quarter net income rose to $151 million, or $1.40 a share, from $144 million, or $1.33 a share. Sales rose to $4.2 billion from $4.1 billion in the 1969 quarter.

To bid in the face of an opposing no-trump opening is always risky. When in doubt, silence is usually golden. However, there are many unbalanced hands, particularly of a two-suited variety, that call for some action. The problem is to locate a good fit in a suit if one is available.

THE BATTLE STALIN LOST

Memoirs of Yugoslavia

By Vladimir Dedjler. Viking. 341 pp. $8.50.

Reviewed by Thomas Lask

HE came to write this account of Stalin's attempt to strangle the Yugoslav revolution and to treat the country as a Soviet fief, the author says, because of the Russian invasion of Czechoslovakia and because the young people seemed to have only a dim idea of what happened in their own country after 1948.

Mr. Lask is a book reviewer for The New York Times.

Florida Gators Start Biting

From Wire Dispatches
NEW YORK, Feb. 16.—The Florida Gators have learned to bite apparently they like the taste.

Florida got its first taste of upset Saturday night with a victory over Kentucky and last night the Gators clinched 15th-ranked Tennessee, 7-55.

Earl Findley tipped in a rebound with one second left to give Florida a upset over the Volunteers. Tennessee pulled ahead, 55-54, before Findley tipped in a shot by Tony

Colleges Open Lobbying For Post-Season Berths

By Sam Goldaper
NEW YORK, Feb. 16 (NYT)—It is the time when college coaches, sports information directors and alumni make professional sidings appear like amateurs.

Their campaigns for post-season basketball tournament bids and commendations for the various J-America teams are a boon to the printing business.

position director at Syracuse, just happened to attend a Basketball Writers' luncheon in New York yesterday with a reminder that the Orange had won 14 of 19 games and were hopeful of going to the NIT.

Alumni from the University of Iowa have been telephoning New York regularly with reminders that the Rainbows' record has reached 19-3.

"Bill Foster (Rutgers coach) has asked me to remind every one of his team's record again," quipped Jack Rohan, the Columbia coach, at the luncheon.

Foster, a member of the midwest NCAA selection committee, replied: "Our fans are NIT conscious and always have been. Maybe it's the accessibility to the garden, the cost factor and that they enjoy following the team to New York."

Miller, the Gators' leading scorer with 14 points.

Jimmy England, Tennessee's high-scoring guard, was held to eight points by Florida's Jerry Hoover. Gary Waddell and Findley had 12 points each to help the Florida attack while soph Lloyd Richardson was high man for the Vol's with 20.

It was fun and games time for two of college basketball's other men but for Kansas, it was a maddening down to the last 23 seconds.

Jacksonville's 7-foot-2 Artis Gilmore hit 22 points and had 25 rebounds as the Dolphins defeated Florida State, 100-76, and 7-foot Jim McDaniels scored 26 points and grabbed 26 rebounds in Western Kentucky's 83-65 victory over East Tennessee.

Kansas, however, had to scrap to save a 71-63 decision over Oklahoma.

The Jayhawks trailed, 35-33, at halftime, gained the lead at 52-50, then held on. With 23 seconds remaining, Pierre Russell hit two foul shots to give the winners a 71-66 advantage.

Florida staged a late rally against Jacksonville after trailing, 49-37, at the half. The Seminoles closed to within 74-73 before Gilmore hit two field goals and two free throws with five minutes left to play.

It was Gilmore's clutch baskets and rebounds that saved the Dolphins but it was junior guard Harold Fox's 16 points in the first half that gave the winners the 11-point halftime advantage. Fox was leading scorer with 25 points.

McDaniels was Western Kentucky's one-man show against East Tennessee. He was held to just seven points in the first half but came back for his team's first 17 points in the second half.

Soviet Coach Wants Canada In Title Hockey
STOCKHOLM, Feb. 16 (UPI)—Anatoli Tarasov, coach of the Soviet national ice hockey team, has urged the International Ice Hockey Federation to invite Canada to the 1970 world championship competition.

Tarasov wrote in the Stockholm afternoon newspaper Expressen that "We need the Canadians in the world tournaments. I think the IISH should let Canada return after apologizing for her withdrawal from the 1970 world championships, which should have been played in Canada, because of a quarrel in the IISH over the use of pro players."

Cards' Shannon Likely To Miss '71 Season
ST. LOUIS, Feb. 16 (UPI)—Mike Shannon, St. Louis Cardinal third baseman until he was stricken with a kidney disease last spring, will not go to spring training and probably will not be able to play at all during the 1971 season, the club has announced.

Although Shannon has shown recent improvement, Dr. Stan Lounsbury, the Cardinal team physician, said he "cannot conceive" at this time Mike getting into shape to play baseball this season.

New Card Coach Psychologically Fit

By Dave Braoy
WASHINGTON, Feb. 16 (WF)—The St. Louis Cardinals brought a whole new method to the selecting of a head coach before settling last week on Bob Hollway, former defense coach of the Minnesota Vikings.

"Nothing was asked about my leadership, my driving demands on players, my attitude, or dedication of purpose. I was told the test showed I had a lot of drive. I would be for the test if it would help defenders to get to the passer."

Wrong Conclusions
Former head coach Winner, now a Redskins assistant, disclosed that the Cardinals previously gave psychological tests to veteran players. Another firm conducted those.

The Rocket, Once Mr. Hockey, Never Had Offer to Coach

By Dave Anderson
NEW YORK, Feb. 16 (NYT)—Maurice Richard once was the essence of hockey. What he tried to do a decade ago, his 544 regular-season goals were a National Hockey League milestone.

"I've never had any offers," he was saying at the New York Hockey Writers luncheon yesterday. "I think it's because I always said I would love to coach but as long as I make good money living at home, I don't want to go somewhere to coach."

Richey Advances In U.S. Nationals

SALISBURY, Maryland, Feb. 16 (AP)—Vladimir Zednik, a 24-year mechanic from Czechoslovakia, scored the first major upset of the $50,000 United States indoor tennis championships last night when he defeated the second-ranked foreign entry, Zalko Franulovic of Yugoslavia, 3-5, 6-4, 6-4.

In another first-round match, second-seeded Cliff Richey beat Sonny Parun of New Zealand, 6-1, 6-2.

No contract pros are playing as the results of a dispute with the tournament chairman over the number of entries, and about a guarantee for the players.

In afternoon matches, Jimmy Connors, a protégé of Fred Perry, won a first-round victory over Hans Eary of Austria in the $50,000 National Indoor Open tennis championships today.

The 18-year-old left-hander from Belleville, Ill., won by 6-4, 6-1.

In other first-round action on the tournament's second day, Peter Curtis of England and Jaan Gisbert of Spain scored straight-set victories.

Curtis ousted Milan Holcnek of Czechoslovakia, 6-2, 6-1, and Gilbert bowed down Haroon Rahim of Pakistan, 7-6, 6-3. The first set was decided by a nine-point tiebreaker. Rahim, a student at the University of California, Los Angeles, is the United States amateur grass champion.

In a second-round match, Joaquin Joya-Ortiz of Mexico defeated Fred Perry, 7-5, 6-2. Howard of Knoxville, 7-5, 6-2. Howard, on military leave, was a late substitute for the ailing Erick Van Dillen of San Mateo, Calif.
